ON FAITH & GIVING

The Lake Institute on Faith & Giving at the Indiana University Family School of Philanthropy is a premiere partner in the Generosity transformed! Conference and will be presenting their initial findings and early results of the National Study of Congregations' Economic Practices (NSCEP). The nationally-representative study of more than 1,000 churches from across the theological spectrum is examining their theological, cultural, and practical orientations toward money. These fresh understandings of how congregations receive, manage, and spend their financial resources will be current, credible benchmarks in the field of congregational giving.

Engaged in the advancement of faith-based philanthropy, the Lake Institute on Faith & Giving exists to foster a greater understanding of the ways in which faith inspires and informs giving through research, education, and training.
